

Remote Learning Check-Out

Students who, out of an abundance of caution, choose to engage Warner's Remote Learning option for the semester should review the following information, sign and date below.

Students who choose this option are committing to this method of course completion for the remainder of the semester. Warner is committed to helping students complete courses successfully and have put into place guidelines and accommodations as explained below:

1. The primary means of course completion will be delivered through Moodle for most courses. Some unconventional courses such as science labs, music lessons, etc., may utilize other technologies such as Google Hangouts or online labs. These differences will be communicate by your instructors.
2. Students will be responsible for completing all course work as designed and assigned by the instructor.
3. Students will be responsible for checking their Warner University email and Moodle course spaces regularly.
4. Athletes need to check-in with their coach and return gear before leaving campus.
5. No changes or adjustments will be made to the student's billing for the semester, should he or she choose this option.
6. Residential students are responsible for removing all of their belongings from their residence hall, and completing a check-out procedure with their Residence Hall team (RD / RA). Please do not leave any personal belongings behind as there will be no opportunity to return for them this semester. Students must vacate themselves and their belongings from campus within 24 hours of signing this document.
7. Students will be responsible for returning their Follett textbook rental according to Follett's return procedure protocol.

By signing below, I am agreeing to all terms and implications of this Remote Learning Check-Out procedure.
